

Ángela M. Molina

Teacher at ESIC Pamplona

I was born in Puertollano, Castilla-La Mancha in 1982 and studied English at the University of Ciudad Real, where I was awarded an Erasmus scholarship and given the opportunity to travel to Cyprus.

While in Cyprus, I combined my studies with teaching Spanish as a Foreign Language to students of various nationalities, preparing them for Cervantes Diplomas at different levels of ability.

I have worked at ESIC for three years, teaching English and Spanish for foreigners and preparing students for the different exams offered by Cambridge University and the Cervantes Institute. I continue to supplement my training with further courses and classroom experience.
