The importance of living an international experience

Antiguo Alumno del Master en Dirección de Marketing y Gestión Comercial (GESCO)

International experience offers you a greater business vision, optimization and better execution of professional resources and, above all, greater and faster adaptation to the constant changes that are taking place nowadays.

How to compete in international markets?

- Training must be paramount
- Have a good language base
- Have an experience abroad (1 year minimum), living outside the comfort zone

To study abroad? How to choose a destination well?

- For its training offer
- For the culture and languages
- For their career opportunities

What do you value most about ESIC?

- Learn from classmates and their sectors
- The School keeps alumni in touch
- Continuous process of improvement and updating of job offers and training

